To be eligible

- your last license must have been issued by the state of Washington unless you are military currently stationed in the state of Washington. If military, please provide front and back photocopies of your current military ID and valid driver license.
- you must have been arrested for, or convicted of, an alcohol or drug-related DUI, physical control, vehicular assault, or vehicular homicide.
- your suspension/revocation cannot be for habitual traffic offender, minor in possession, reckless driving, or a non-alcohol drug-related offense.
- you cannot use an IIL to operate a commercial motor vehicle.

Required documentation

We cannot issue an IIL until the day your suspension/revocation begins and we have received and processed these documents:

- proof of financial responsibility. The most common is a Certificate of Insurance (SR-22). Contact an insurance agent for assistance.
- proof of ignition interlock device installation for every vehicle you drive. The installer will send us proof.

If your employment requires you to drive a vehicle during working hours that is owned, leased, rented, or the temporary responsibility of your employer, it may be exempt. We must have a signed Employer Declaration on file. This form is available at www.dol.wa.gov.

If you are determined to be indigent, you may be eligible for assistance with costs of ignition interlock device installation, removal, and leasing. To apply for assistance, use the Ignition Interlock Device Financial Worksheet at www.dol.wa.gov.

You waive your right to a hearing or appeal when you receive an Ignition Interlock Driver License.
